PerfKit Benchmarker

Before you migrate workloads to the cloud, you need to benchmark network performance in order to understand how that performance affects your business applications. PerfKit Benchmarker is an open-source tool created inside Google that makes network performance benchmarking faster and easier.

For more information on this tool, the performance metrics it supports, and deployment use cases, read the article Performance art: Making cloud network performance benchmarking faster and easier.